Upcoming Holidays

Mother's Day

Mother's Day is the second Sunday in May. It is the day when children give their mothers cards and gifts to thank them for all their love and care.

Memorial Day

On the last Monday in May people hold processions and listen to speeches in memory of those in the armed services who died for their country (Navy, Army, Marines, Air Force, and Coast Guard). The first ceremony, in 1868, was in memory of those who died in the Civil War (1861-1865). After World War I the federal holiday has honored all fallen military personnel in any war.

Father's Day

Father's Day is the third Sunday in June. It is the day when children give their fathers cards and gifts to thank them for all their love and care.

Independence Day

After many years of conflict between colonists and their British rulers, the Americans started to rebel. On July 4, 1776, the colonists signed the Declaration of Independence, which started a seven-year war that eventually led to breaking free from Britain. July 4 is now a national holiday that celebrates the birth of America as a sovereign nation. Americans across the country wear red, white, and blue, and enjoy parades, fireworks, and parties.
